The controls are simple enough to use. Good features When working with the program, the matchperson is placed in the middle of the working environment. The timeline can be used to display the animation based on the order of the frames. To learn more about the program, there is a help manual available online. ButtonsDe red buttons allow you to control the work environment and the position where you drag the match button person. Other controls include flipping the shape, seeing onion skins, mirroring the shape, changing the shape color, and raising, or lowering the selected number. The selected number can be scaled or with another. Opacity can be adjusted and the frames can be inserted, deleted, or copied. When you're ready to play the animation, you may have enabled a loop mode to keep the frames reused. You can include a custom background image in GIF, PNG, JPG, or BMP format. Stick Figure BuilderYou can create your own matchpeople using circles and lines of options. Other options include thickness adjustment, segment duplication, static generation, and more. The ExportProgram allows you to save and export in PIV format. This allows you to import and edit your matchstick creations in the future. To export in a different format, you can also select GIF, JPEG, PNG, or AVI. This allows you to use them on web pages as images or video content. Animation CreatorPivot Animator doesn't have as many features as Adobe Animate or Autodesk Maya, but it has easy-to-use controls. People with no experience level will find the program to be comfortable to use. The results are also impressive. Pivot Animator (formerly Pivot Stickfigure Animator and usually abbreviated to Pivot) is a freeware program that allows users to create stick shape and sprite animations, and save them in the animated GIF format for use on web pages and AVI format (in Pivot Animator 3 and later). Pivot provides a simple, easy-to-use interface with a few features. It uses fixed length 'sticks' to ensure size consistency during animation, something that is not as simple to recreate in professional animation software like Autodesk Maya or Adobe Flash. [referral is needed]. Pivot Animator allows you to save the PIV file format animation so you can easily import numbers for future editing options. In addition, you can export the animation to AVI or GIF file format to be used on your web pages or save it as individual images (PNG, JPEG) with adjustable photo quality and size. What you may not know is that these two elements are beautifully put together by Pivot, a free program for Windows. This is a tool that you can use to come up with animations that have matchsticks. The great thing about Pivot, in addition to the fact that it's free, is that it's incredibly easy to use. Even a complete can quickly and easily create stick man animations. See that it weighs in less than 1MB, it certainly won't take long for you to download the Pivot installation file on your machine. Getting the program up and running won't take long either. Just run the executable, follow the instructions from the setup wizard and you will be done before you know it. Note that during the installation process you will be invited to install Nitro PDF Reader. Front and center of the program's interface is the stickman animation you are working on. All frames from the animation appear at the top, while on the left there is a section where you can add new frames and access a few other settings, such as <a0></a0> or <a1></a1>. In the upper-left corner where it is usually located, there is a traditional film u that you can use to load special shapes, create custom shapes, and add a custom background. Pivot comes with a few sample animations that you can load and thus get a quick taste of what you can achieve with the application. The simple truth of the matter is that creating an animation with Pivot is a very simple task: just move the stick man as you wish, create as many frames as you want, save your animation. You can save it as a PIV, BMP, or GIF. As mentioned above, Pivot is a free program. Consider making a donation if you like the application and want to support its development. With the utmost ease, you will be able to create stick man animations. That's what you get from this free program called Pivot. Pros There are some examples of animations you can load. Edit existing shapes, load special shapes, load backgrounds, easily create a matchstick personal animation, and save it as a PIV, BMP, or GIF. Pivot is freeware. Cons None that I could think of.
